Above Expectations

John is the most analytical person I've met who is also able to translate complex analysis to any audience. He excels at providing end-to-end reporting and analytical services to internal business partners, leadership, and customers. John develops and leads integrated solutions and effectively applies both business knowledge and technical expertise to design, develop, and implement business intelligence solutions, data marts, interfaces, complex reports, and analysis. He provides technical expertise in the architecture and development of integrated data and business process improvement solutions for functional areas through the use of technology in support of Sutter Health. Additionally, John's calm and methodical demeanor lends well to relationship management and people development. He often provides technical direction and training to other team members and colleagues as needed. He contributes ideas and actions towards the continuous improvement of processing and presenting data and application related processes. He assures the ongoing high performance level of the department through continued development of technical skills and business knowledge. John seeks out opportunities to improve processes and tools without any direction. And finally, John has a flare for documentation that is presented in an appealing way. I firmly believe John could present the long and short of War & Peace in a way that anyone could digest easily AND want to!
